

Dept of Classics
QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
KINGSTON, ONTARIO

26 Feb 69

Harold:

My job bore heavily on me when I got back to Kingston, so I have not yet had the chance to read as much of Post Mortem III as I had hoped. I plan to finish it over the weekend, if nothing intervenes. Enclosed are corrections up to p. 21. More will follow.

The Evening Standard (London) sent me copies of articles re Sirhan's trips to Middle East, but they are very bad copies, hard to read, and not suitable for reproduction. Moreover, they are incomplete-- more info is contained in Dawnay's monograph. I'll try to get good copies thru inter-library loan. If you desire the best, have someone in Washington go to Lib. of Congress or other library that might have the original. In the mean time, I'll try to get them from here.

Enclosed are copies of the final version of my monograph on the scope sight. I made about 50 copies for distribution to friends. Alcock seems now to be finished with Frazier, so I see no harm in sending it out now.

For the record, and to clear my own conscience, I want to say that I think no good can come out of the Shaw case. Garrison has a faulted case, and Shaw should not be convicted under it. The fault, of course, is having the jury believe that LHO was in on it. That is not fair to Shaw, and-- what is worse-- it is not fair to Justice. I am convinced of many things about Shaw that make him a scoundrel of the worst kind, but he still does not deserve to be convicted under that indictment. It is dreadful. I'll be disappointed whether Garrison wins or loses-- for different reasons in each case. What a snow job! What fakery! What contempt of the legal forms that are supposed to guarantee justice for us all! I hate it when "the other side" pulls such stunts, but I hate it worse when we do it. Enough said.

Considering the subject matter of COUP, I have Harry Jones Jr.'s The Minutemen, which you should read. Possibly you already have, but I did not see it in your library. If you want it, I'll loan it to you.

I wrote to Dell for WWI and II, and am waiting for an answer.

I must stop, for I have much to do. I'LL write again after the weekend.

Still,

Dick

Bernabei

Post MORTEM III

- p.1 §3 "delined" s.b. "declined"
- p.2 §2 "assa" s.b. "as a"
- p.6 line 3 "hez" s.b. "he"
- p.6 l.5 "su-cessful" s.b. "successful"
- p.8 §2 "rep-resentative" s.b. "rep-resentative"
- p.11 §1 "subornation of perjury" / I am not sure, but I think this should be "subornation to perjury".
- p.12 §5 "proceed-ings" s.b. "proceedings"
- p.13 §2 "ee" s.b. "he"
- p.13 §3 "comeone" s.b. "someone"
- p.14 §4 "Almo-t" s.b. "almost"
- p.15 §4 "already-quoted" s.b. "already-quoted"
- p.16 §5 "lited" s.b. "listed"
- p.19 §2 "-y" s.b. "by"
- p.21 §3 "bull-t" s.b. "bullet"
- p.21 §3 from bottom: "cnn" s.b. "can"